Your support helps families like Lindsey’s eat well and worry less

Lindsey works full-time but struggles to buy healthy food. She says, “The (Community Produce Program) means I can serve my kids awesome fresh meals. The kids love fruits and veggies, but they can be expensive and take up a big chunk of our small budget. I am thrilled to now have fresh produce delivered to my neighborhood, walking distance to my home.”

Every week thousands of parents, just like Lindsey, rely on the Food Bank and our partner agencies to help feed their families. They’ve known their fair share of hardship and although it takes an incredible amount of courage to ask for help, they are determined to put food on the table for their children.

Because there are many children in need of nutritious food within our community, the Food Bank of Contra Costa and Solano has programs throughout the year to help alleviate childhood hunger, including Food for Children, Farm 2 Kids, and the School Pantry Program.

Summer can especially be worrisome for thousands of children in Contra Costa and Solano counties. Since they are no longer in school to receive lunch, children often do not get enough to eat.

You can help feed children during the summer! Even small donations make a big difference as the Food Bank can purchase in bulk to serve more people in need. In fact, for as little as $10.50 you can help provide food towards three meals a day for one week for one child.

With community support we are able to let kids be kids by taking hunger off their mind for a little while, as we work toward long-term solutions to end child hunger.

Working to end child hunger

As the Food Bank of Contra Costa and Solano looks back at forty years of serving the community, it is interesting to see that much of the work we do today is the same as the work we did in 1975. We work in a much larger and more sophisticated way, but the focus remains on providing food to those in need. When Linda Locke took the initial steps to found the Food Bank, it was because she saw the children she served as a social worker in need of food. Linda saw children whose hair and skin showed they were not getting essential nutrition to maintain their health, and knew something must be done.

Forty years later, a good deal of our work is about providing children with the nutrition they need. Our Food for Children and Farm 2 Kids programs were created to provide fresh produce to low-income children. Our Community Produce Program provides over a million pounds of food to families each year, reaching thousands of children in our community. The work we began doing forty years ago must continue today because children need proper nutrition to thrive.

Thank you for supporting our mission to feed children.

Community rallies to replace missing summer meals

Every year over 65,000 children receive free or reduced price lunches in Contra Costa and Solano counties. When school lets out for the summer the school districts in both counties work with local community centers, parks, churches and school sites to provide lunches to low-income children throughout our community. However, each summer, only 15,000 children end up taking advantage of the summer lunch program.

There are many barriers that prevent children from accessing the lunch program, including the USDA regulation that parents cannot eat with their children. This summer, the Y&H Soda Foundation will fund six school districts in Contra Costa County to provide adult meals at one of their sites two days a week. They will also fund an evaluation study to demonstrate that providing free adult meals can increase summer lunch participation among children who need it most. Ultimately, if the whole family can eat together we will come closer to closing the summer meal gap.

Summer FUNraiser ideas to try on your break

Many people think of the Food Bank during the holidays, but our need for support is just as strong in the summer. We are able to use donations of funds to purchase healthy food. In fact, for every $1 donated, we can provide $4 worth of nutritious food! Some programs rely on donated food, but donations of nonperishable food begin to run low late in the summer. In order to meet the needs of the one in eight residents who rely on the Food Bank, we have to supplement our programs with the food we purchase.

You can help the Food Bank by collecting food or funds this summer! Use these ideas to get you started and be sure to share photos of your good work on Facebook and Instagram @foodbankccs.

Have a birthday party at the Food Bank with donations in lieu of gifts – You bring the guests, we provide you with the space, simple decorations and a fun volunteer activity. www.foodbankccs.org/birthdays

Start a lemonade or snack stand - Accept payment in canned food or donate a portion of the proceeds to the Food Bank.

Put a collection barrel on your porch and invite the neighbors to donate - Contact Joan at the Food Bank for a barrel (her info is below).

Ask your local grocery store if you can set up a barrel to collect food donations – Joan knows all the good spots, give her a call first!

Attend a Family Food Sort at our Fairfield warehouse – Every 3rd Saturday of the month, this unique opportunity lets families with children as young as five work together bagging produce for our Community Produce Program.

For more ideas visit www.foodbankccs.org/otherwaystohelp.

Please let Joan at the Food Bank know about your drive, so we can assist you. We are happy to drop off collection boxes or a barrel and pick them up when your drive is complete, we will even let you know how many pounds of food you collected! Joan can be reached at – jtomasinifoodbankccs.org or call 925-676-7543 ext 208.
